of various constructions, warranted to be full as just and correct as any ever offered to the public. In particular, he too presuming.

Madrid, Jan. 20.

The King of Spain was proclaimed in this capital on Saturday the 17th instant, with all customary ceremonies. The Conde de Aleniz, as Alferaz-Major of Madrid, bore the Royal standard, and was accompanied in the procession by a great number of Grandees on horses very richly caparisoned, and also by the Corregidor, Alguazils, Heralds, and others. The proclamation was repeated in different parts of the city, and silver and gold coins, prepared for the occasion, were thrown by the Heralds among the people. The first proclamation was made in the great Square, in front of the Palace. Their Catholic Majesties were present, seated in a balcony, and attended by the Ambassadors, and other Foreign Ministers, and by the principal Officers of State. The acclamations of the people were great, and expressive of much loyalty and affection to their Sovereigns. The public mourning was suspended during three days, a very large list of promotions was published, and there was a general illumination on each of the three evenings.

A Royal order has been published at Malaga, permitting for the present, and only at the Custom-house of that port, the free transshipping and deposit of such produce, goods, and merchandizes as may be entered there, and destined for the Barbary, or other foreign ports, as also of such as may arrive from those countries, and be destined for the northern or other ports, including silver in coin, in bars, or wrought; which, as well as all other goods, is to pay, on being reshipped, one per cent. on the value, according to the invoice; and gold in coin, ingots, or dust, and all kinds of articles of silver and gold, set or unset with pearls or precious stones, are to pay half per cent. PARLIAMENTARY INTELLIGENCE. HOUSE OF LORDS.

MONDAY, Feb. 9.

The Lord Chancellor came down to the House about half after four, when prayers being read, several petitions were presented, and motions made for rehearing of causes in appeals from the Court of Session in Scotland, &c. all of which were ordered.

Mr Newland, cashier of the Bank, appeared at the bar with the account of the expenditure of Mr Newland also gave in an account of the sums appropriated towards liquidating the national debt.

HASTINGS' TRIAL.

Lord Dover presented a petition from Warren Hastings, Esq; which his Lordship moved to have read. Ordered.

The petition contained an enumeration of the hardships he suffered by the length the trial already had, and was still likely to take, as the honourable House of Commons had exhibited twenty charges against him; and although twelve months had elapsed since the commencement, but two of those charges had been gone through. It stated, that, in that time, seven of those who were his judges had paid the debt of nature: That it had already cost him near thirty thousand pounds; and therefore he was apprehensive lest his property should be exhausted before he had established his innocence, and he left destitute even of subsistence; for these, among other reasons, he prayed their Lordships would proceed without any further delays, and, if possible, end it without any further adjournments.

Lord Thurlow regretted that more notice had not been given, as it would be very improper in his opinion to come to any decision upon it in so thin a House. He believed there was not one of their Lordships, from the peculiarity of the present circumstances, could have an idea it would be possible to proceed according to the last adjournment, which stood for to-morrow: That being the case, this petition might be taken fairly into consideration previous to the day appointed to proceed. He would, therefore, propose that the petition be ordered to lie on the table, and the order for to-morrow be discharged.

The etiquette of the House, however, making it necessary that some day should be named, his Lordship mentioned Monday; at the same time desiring it to be understood, it was by no means intended that should be the day on which the trial should proceed.

His Lordship's idea being approved, the same was determined upon, and the House adjourned to Wednesday.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

MONDAY, Feb. 9.

A writ was ordered to be issued for the borough of Aylesbury, in the county of Bucks, vacated by the death of Sir Thomas Hallifax, Knight.

A person from the Commissioners for the reduction of the national debt presented accounts at the Bar, which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr Newland, from the Bank, presented accounts, which were also ordered to lie on the table.

Mr Rolle rose and noticed to the House, that he had read in a paper of that day, that a Gentleman had charged him, on a former day, with dishonourable motives in bringing forward the amendment he had offered to a clause which was before the House. He had not heard such motives imputed to him; if he had, he should not have sat silent. The Hon. Gentleman then entered into a justification of his conduct, and concluded by observing, that if any person persisted in attributing to him dishonourable motives, he begged to say that they persisted in what was illiberal, indecent, and untrue.

The Speaker said, it was with concern he had heard the Hon. Gentleman, and had been prevented from calling him to order, apprehending he had a motion to offer; he considered it disorderly to allude to any thing that had passed on a former day, and he hoped the House would support him in preventing such disorderly conversation.

ORDER OF THE DAY.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer moved the order of the day, which being read, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the whole House, Mr. Alderman Woodhouse in the Chair.

The twelfth clause was moved by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, restraining the Regent from exercising any authority over the personal estate of his Majesty.

This clause caused a short conversation between Mr Anstruther, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr Burke, and Mr Sheridan; after which the clause was agreed to without a division.

The thirteenth clause was read, and carried without any objection.

The fourteenth clause, providing for the payment of his Majesty's Household, under the direction of her Majesty, being read,

Sir James Erskine opposed it, as granting larger powers than were necessary to be granted; and considered, that the expense of the Household might be much decreased.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said, that circumstances arising from his Majesty's situation, rather tended to increase than diminish the expense of some parts of the Household.

Mr Sheridan objected to the clause as wholly unnecessary, and as tending to create a double government of the Household, in the Queen and in the Treasury.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer replied, that there would be no double government, the Treasury having nothing more to do with the Household by the present clause, than to issue the sums ordered.

Mr Burke objected to the clause, as tending to the subversion of the privileges of the act of establishment of the civil list; as tending to the subversion of economy, and calculated only for the purpose of providing for a favourite and unnecessary corps.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer intimated to the Committee, that messengers were attending from the Lords; and, for the purpose of receiving the message, moved, that the Committee should report progress.

This being immediately agreed to, the House was resumed, and the messengers called in.

MESSAGE FROM THE LORDS.

The Lords had commanded the messengers to acquaint the House of Commons, that they would proceed further in the trial of Warren Hastings, Esq; on Monday next.

The messengers being withdrawn, Mr Burke thought it necessary to inform the House, that he understood a petition had been delivered by Mr Hastings to the Lords, setting forth, that he had expended already in the course of the trial 30,000 l. and prayed their Lordships to proceed with all speed to his trial. Mr Burke expressed his readiness to proceed as speedily as possible to the issue of that on which he considered his honour pledged. He remarked that the sum expended by the public in the course of the trial was much less than that stated to have been expended by Mr Hastings, and concluded by observing, that he understood their Lordships only meant on Monday to open the trial pro forma, and not to go into it on that day.

The House again resolved itself into a Committee on the adjourned debate on the 14th clause, Brook Watson, Esq; in the Chair.

A short conversation took place upon the clause, in which Mr Pitt, Mr Sloper, Mr Burke, Mr Sheridan, Mr Powys, the Attorney General, Sir James Erskine, and Lord North, took part.

Mr Powys moved, that the clause be postponed, in which motion he was supported by Lord North, upon the ground of the propriety of deciding upon a subsequent clause first, which was the basis of the present.

This motion being persisted in, the Committee divided, being postponed.

The clause was then put and carried without a division.

The fifteenth clause was then put and carried without any conversation.

The sixteenth clause, relative to the privy purse of his Majesty, was next proposed, which was opposed by Mr Dempster, Sir W. Cunynghame, Mr Burke, Sir William Moleworth, and Mr Sheridan; and supported by Mr Pitt, Mr Dundas, Sir James Johnston, and Sir Benjamin Hammett.

It was opposed, upon the ground of the impropriety of refusing to his Royal Highness the Prince, who was to support the dignity of the Crown, the power over the privy purse, amounting to 60,000 l.

per annum, out of which, by the clause, was to be taken 16,000 l. and given to her Majesty, for purposes unknown to Parliament, and the remainder to be improperly locked up from the Prince, and to be left, in case of his Majesty's indisposition continuing, to the disposition of Parliament.

It was supported, upon the propriety of continuing his Majesty's benefactions, and on the impropriety of seizing the moment of his Majesty's indisposition, to strip him of his property. The 16,000 l. which had been said to be given to her Majesty for purposes unknown to Parliament, was explained in the following manner: 12,000 l. was given to pay an established list of charities, settled by his Majesty; and the remaining 4,000 l. was to enable her Majesty to continue his Majesty's benefactions to those persons who were not on the list, but who she knew received charity of his Majesty to that amount.

Sir William Moleworth was willing to agree to the sum proposed to be taken from the money of his Majesty's privy purse, that was appropriated to the charities mentioned; but not thinking it proper that the remainder should be kept from the Prince, he moved, as an amendment, to add the words, "and that the remainder shall be paid over to the Treasurer of the privy purse of the Regent."

Upon this amendment the Committee divided,

Ayes	101
Noes	156

Majority against the amendment 55

The Solicitor-General proposed an amendment, which was agreed to, and the clause was carried without any further objection.

The seventeenth clause was next read, vesting in her Majesty the care of the King's person, and the government of the household.

Mr Powys objected to that part of the clause which gave her Majesty power over the household; he condemned it as a division of power with the executive authority, which was unjustifiable and inadmissible; the power given her Majesty over the household, and the clause restraining the Regent from creating Peers, gave a dangerous controul over the two Houses, and the country, which was put into irresponsible hands. After arguing upon the mischiefs that might result from such a measure, he concluded by moving an amendment to the preamble of the clause, leaving it open for future revision.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer agreed to the amendment, and said, in the course of the whole business before the House, one of the principles he had ever invariably maintained was, that the whole of the bill ought ever to be kept open to the future revision and alteration of Parliament.

The question on the amendment being put and agreed to, it was inserted in the clause.

Sir Peter Burrell spoke against the latter part of the clause, the patronage given by which, he said, was too loosely expressed that it was impossible to ascertain the amount of it, and of which he conceived the House ought to be acquainted previous to their adopting the clause.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer acquainted the Hon. Baronet, that the whole amount of the salaries of the Household, from the Great Officers at the head of the different departments, down to the most inferior, was not more than 100,000 l. per annum; out of that sum there was not more than about thirty thousand pounds received for salaries by members of the two Houses of Parliament; there were seven in the House of Commons, whose salaries amounted to about 4000 l. and eighteen Lords in the other House whose salaries amounted to about 26,000 l. Such influence, he said, was not, in his opinion, likely hereafter to preclude any revision or necessary alteration in the system proposed for the present emergency.

Sir Peter Burrell replied. Lord North condemned the resolution upon the old ground of objection to her Majesty's having the government. His Lordship deprecated the measure of dividing that power from the Regent, as unconstitutional and dangerous, and expressed his fear of its operating as a pernicious precedent.

Mr Keene spoke against the clause.

Mr Grey supported it.

Mr Malham, Mr Powys, Mr Sheridan, Mr Sloper, Mr Burke, Lord George Cavendish, and Lord North again, spoke against the clause.

Mr M. Montague, Sir William Dolben, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer again spoke in support of the clause.

Mr Sheridan proposed an amendment to separate the great Officers from the Household, upon which the Committee divided,

Ayes	113

The question was then put upon the clause, which was carried.

The House being immediately resumed, progress was reported, and the Committee ordered to sit again to-morrow.

At half an hour after twelve o'clock the House adjourned.

There remain fourteen clauses, and the preamble.

TUESDAY, Feb. 10.

Several gentlemen presented petitions for private bills.

Mr Russell brought up a petition from the county of Southampton, complaining of the provisions of the Regency-bill.

The Committee on this bill was now resumed; and the Chairman read that clause, which provides that a Council shall be appointed to assist her Majesty in the care of the Royal Person, and the management of the Household.

This clause gave occasion for a debate of considerable length; but, as the material points discussed were contained within a narrow compass, there is no necessity for a copious detail.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer observed, that, in filling up the blanks of this clause, it was natural that the high officers of the Household should occur to the mind as proper persons to be Members of the Council; but it was also advisable to add some other gentlemen. He would therefore propose, that, in addition to the four following great officers, viz. the Lord Steward, the Lord Chamberlain, the Master of the Horse, and the Groom of the Stole, there be appointed John Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, William Lord Archbishop of York, Edward Lord Thurlow, and Lloyd Lord Kenyon. The House would perceive that, of the four last named persons, two were supreme in the church, and the other two were the highest officers in the law. There appeared to be a manifest propriety in selecting these noble Lords, as they were persons to whom his Majesty had given signal proofs of his regard, by promoting them to such elevated stations.

The question being put, that the first blank be filled up with the name of John Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord North rose, not, he said, to object to the appointment of this respectable prelate, or of the seven other personages that were to be afterwards moved for. But he could not refrain from expressing his surprise that none of the Royal family were proposed by the Right Hon. Gentleman as members of this Council. Those who were the nearest in blood and affection, must, he thought, obviously strike any one as the most competent persons for forming such a Council. Indeed, he could not see a single reason for excluding them. The ties of blood, the consideration of interest, and, in short, every motive that ought to have weight on such an occasion, co-operated in favour of their admission into her Majesty's Council of advice. At a proper stage, therefore, he would move, that the Dukes of York, Gloucester, and Cumberland, Prince William Henry, and Prince Edward, be nominated members of this Council.

Mr Dempster recommended the Speaker of the House of Commons, and the Lord Mayor of London, as fit persons to be added to this Council.

Lord Maitland thought it strange, that four of the noble Lords proposed by the Right Hon. Gentleman, should be appointed by virtue of their offices, and the other four according to their proper names. Instead of Edward Lord Thurlow, and Lloyd Lord Kenyon, why not propose the Lord Chancellor and Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, for the time being; in consequence of which, the persons who held those employments would form a part of the Council in respect of their office, whereas now, in the room of Lord Thurlow and Kenyon, any two persons of very different stations might be nominated.

The Marquis of Graham thought it would hardly be respectful to name Princes of the Blood as members of the Queen's Council, as it would be the means of troubling them with responsible situations, when they might give her Majesty advice without being of her Council.

Mr Sheridan replied, that, far from being at all disrespectful to name them of the Council, it would be a piece of disrespect not to appoint them. The exclusion of them would be an insult on common sense, and an outrage on the laws of nature.

Mr Burke supported the nomination of the Princes of the Blood to this Council. He also condemned the idea of conferring an office of trust on any person, even on the Queen herself, without responsibility. He was of opinion, that, in this new arrangement of the Household, and in the exclusion of the Princes from the Council, the Right Hon. Gentleman had violated principle, precedent, and the laws of nature.

Mr Powys moved, as an amendment to the question, that, for the words "John Archbishop of Canterbury," there be inserted the words "the Archbishop of Canterbury for the time being."

This amendment was put, and rejected without a division; and the original question was agreed to.

The Archbishop of York, the Lords Thurlow and Kenyon, and the four officers of the Household above mentioned, were then agreed to by the House as members of the Council.

Lord North now moved, that his Royal Highness the Duke of York and Albany be appointed a member of this Council.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer opposed this motion. The principal reason he gave for thus dissenting from it, was, that if the Princes of the Blood were admitted into this Council, they would, from their rank and influence, share with her Majesty that power which he wished should reside singly with her.

Lord Beauchamp affirmed, that it would have a very suspicious appearance with the public, if their Royal Highnesses should be excluded from the Council.

In the course of the debate upon various parts of this clause, the speakers, besides those already mentioned, were Messrs. Bouvier, Addington, Anstruther, Sumner, Phipps, Dundas, M. A. Taylor, the Attorney-General, and Sir Peter Burrell.

Lord North's motion for inserting the name of the Duke of York was then put, and the House divided upon it, when the numbers were,

and, at eleven o'clock, they broke up, leaving off at the clause for his Majesty's resumption of his authority.

The House then adjourned till to-morrow.

Monday, her Majesty, with the two young Princesses, dined with his Majesty at Kew.
The King is expected to remove from Kew to Windsor, with the rest of the Royal Family, the beginning of April.

Monday morning, at half past ten o'clock, his Majesty, attended by Dr Willis and Sons, walked round Kew Gardens. They continued in the garden till half past one o'clock, when they returned to the palace to dinner.

The avowed amendment of his Majesty's health has diffused a joy over every countenance in Great Britain. We say every countenance, because we will not be inhuman enough to suppose, that there are any who suffer their politics to supersede their humanity.

On Saturday the King, with his usual attendants, walked in Kew and Richmond Gardens more than two hours. In the evening the Queen and the Princess Royal were introduced to his Majesty in his apartments, where they passed a considerable time longer than on any former visit.

Amongst the symptoms of returning health in the King, is that of his Majesty's appetite: hitherto he ate what was given him very sparingly, and with little or no discrimination of liking: within these few days he appears to have the proper enjoyment of his meals, both in regard to quantity and choice.

His Majesty has suddenly conceived an inclination to adopt the principles and the habit of the Quakers; and as the attending physicians think it proper to indulge him in every mode of a harmless tendency, he has been permitted to assume the attire of those people, in which he at present appears.

As each event, however trivial it may be, becomes interesting, which tends to shew the improving recollection of the King, on Sunday last he noticed to Dr Willis, how much he was fallen away in point of size, and said he would weigh himself. The weight he then was he guessed very accurately.

Before his Majesty went to Cheltenham, β lb. he weighed — 13 4
On his return to Windsor, — 13 4
And on Sunday last, February 8. — 12 2
So that he has exactly lost by his illness sixteen pounds.

The great Duke of Marlborough, when he first exhibited signs of intellectual derangement, was extremely furious, and could not be soothed into tranquillity. After a few months, he sunk into complete imbecility, and whenever he saw a face that he did not know, looked at it very piteously, and fell into tears. From this state he never recovered, but defended to his grave in drivelling dotage.

Monday, at half past three o'clock in the afternoon, his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales set off from Carlton-house on horseback to Kew, where his Highness had an interview with the Queen and Princesses, and in the evening returned to town.

Dr Warren and Dr Brocklesby have given the Lord Chancellor their advice, that nothing but quiet and a total retirement from all public business whatever can restore his health.

Lord Kenyon was prevented from attending the Court of King's Bench yesterday, by sudden illness, which confined his Lordship to his bed.

Mr Fox, since his arrival at Bath, is very much recovered from his late debilitated state. He attended the Theatre with General Burgoyne on Saturday evening, to see his friend Sheridan's excellent comedy of the School for Scandal. They sat in the manager's box the whole of the performance.

Mr Fox is expected in town this day from Bath; and it is with pleasure we can add, that he has derived so much benefit from the waters as to be able to return immediately to the important discharge of his duty in Parliament.

The new Board of Treasury is to be composed of the following respectable characters, viz. His Grace the Duke of Portland, Lord John Cavendish, Sir Grey Cooper, Mr Wyndham, and Mr Grey.

The law appointments will be thus arranged:— Lord Loughborough, Chancellor;—Mr Mansfield, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas;—Mr Erskine, Attorney, and Mr Pigott, Solicitor-General.—Should the Great Seal be put into commission for a short period, Mr Mansfield will be appointed Attorney, and Mr Erskine Solicitor-General.

The various changes of administration will certainly be Gazetted immediately after the establishment of the Regency, which will probably take place before the expiration of the next week.

Mr Dundas has taken a house in Charles-street, St James's Square, for his town residence, on his removal from the Treasury of the Navy.

Yesterday the Duke of Northumberland gave a dinner:—the Prince of Wales was present, and several gentlemen of the first rank and fashion.

A gentleman, just arrived from Dublin, informs us, that, on the second day of meeting, the Parliament (by a majority of 54) carried a motion to appoint the Prince of Wales sole Regent, without limitations.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICIARY.
Yesterday, the High Court of Justiciary met, to hear counsel on the error in the verdict against Thomas Hall, late the under-sheriff of the South Bridge, by omitting his name, as mentioned in our last. Mr Macintosh, in a very able and ingenious speech, contended, on the part of the panel, that the verdict, if it deferred that name, was so very deficient in the most material part, that no sentence could be pronounced in consequence of it, but that the panel ought to be dismissed simpliciter from the bar. He was answered with equal ability by Mr Archibald Campbell and the Lord Advocate, who both insisted, that the omission complained of was of no consequence, the verdict being only part of the trial, and having express reference to the preceding steps of procedure. The Lord Advocate, in particular, said, that if the panel's counsel should be successful in setting aside the verdict, instead of serving their client, it would have a direct contrary effect; because, in that even, the would find himself called upon in justice to the Public, and that so dangerous a criminal might not escape punishment, to apply for a fresh warrant of imprisonment, in order that he might have an opportunity of again bringing the panel to trial for other offences than that with which he stood at present charged. The Hon. Henry Erskine, Dean of Faculty, appeared, for the first time, as counsel for the panel, and made a reply replete with wit, ingenuity, and solid argument. He said he had nothing to do with what the Lord Advocate's conduct might be, if the present verdict was set aside; for that, though he at present appeared as counsel for the panel at the bar, he, at the same time, had a more capital object in view than the preservation of any single individual, and that was, that the laws of his country should not suffer violence, which he was conscious they would do, if any effect whatever was given to the verdict now before the Court. Lord Swinton having expressed a desire for some little time to consider the matter before he gave his opinion, the Court adjourned till Monday morning at ten o'clock, when they are to give judgment on the question. The jury were ordered to attend at the same time.

On Wednesday it was agreed by the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Council, that the Rev. Mr William Simpson, minister of the parish of Lady Yester's, should be presented, to supply the vacancy in the Tron Church, occasioned by the death of the late Mr Martin.

There are at present no less than five vacant charges in the presbytery of Edinburgh. A greater number than has been remembered for many years.

which proved a very seasonable supply, as the benefit of this Society is not confined to any particular season, but extends through the whole year.

The humble Address of the Heritors and Burghesses of the Burgh of BURNHILL.

WE, the Heritors and Burghesses of the Burgh of Burnhill, which we lament the melancholy situation, in which it has pleased the Almighty God to place our most gracious and beloved Sovereign, yet we trust that Divine Providence will soon restore him to an afflicted people, over whom he hath for many years governed with a paternal affection.

During this unfortunate calamity, it affords us no small consolation, that we have your Royal Highness, the Heir Apparent to the Crown of these kingdoms, possessed, in a supreme degree, of every amiable and necessary quality, to fill the office of Regent, during his Majesty's illness, to look to for the protection of our civil and religious liberties; and we cannot doubt but you will take into your Councils men, whose principles will ensure their conducting the government of the country, agreeable to the spirit of the Constitution.

Unto his ROYAL HIGHNESS the PRINCE OF WALES.

The humble Address of the Magistrates and Town Council of the Burgh of BURNHILL.

WE, the Magistrates and Council of the Burgh of Burnhill, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness, in the present afflicting situation of these kingdoms, over which your Royal Highness was to govern, and to mingle with our tears—citizens our heartfelt lamentations for the dreadful calamity with which your Royal Father is afflicted. We trust that it will please Almighty God soon to restore our Gracious Sovereign to his wonted health that he may resume and occupy the functions of his high and exalted station.

Under the pressure of this national calamity, we feel ourselves animated and supported in the fullest conviction of your Royal Highness possessing, in an eminent degree, those princely virtues, those matured and well-calculated talents, which render you able to preserve, to the subjects of these kingdoms, the invaluable blessings which they have enjoyed under the mild and constitutional government of your illustrious House. Anxious in our wishes and ardent in our prayers for that happy period which may restore the health of our Sovereign, we confide in the wisdom of your Royal Highness, to place, during the continuance of the King's illness, in the high and important offices of the State; then, in whom, from well-tryed experience, your Royal Highness can repose trust; Ministers devoted by principle to the sacred constitution of their country, and attached by the purest motives of regard and affection to your person and dignity; whilst, with due humility, we lay at your feet sentiments of the deepest sorrow and concern for the distress of the Royal Family, permit us to assure your Royal Highness of our firm and unalterable attachment to your Person, and the free government of the realm under your auspicious conduct; and that we shall be ready with our lives and fortunes to maintain the establishment in church and State, as recognized at the glorious era of the Revolution, and supported and strenghtened in the illustrious House of Hanover.

ELEGANT HOUSES

In the New City.

TO LET eight different LODGINGS in that great ter-ment lately built in Prince's Street, immediately west of the entry to Castle Street.

The situation and elegant manner in which these houses were done is well known.—The apartments are large and proportionable every way, and there is a convenient number of cellars, &c. in the tank area for every lodging.

The LODGINGS are entered immediately off the pavement by the rise of a few steps, consisting of the ground and arbour floors, have back ground to each, divided into a paved area, bleaching green, and garden; and at the further end, a court of offices, to consist of coach-house, hay-loft, stable for four horses, and a wash-house, to which an entry from Musk-lane, and a private entry from the garden.

The tenants of the Lodgings in the stories or floors above, shall have the privilege of a garden, bleaching green, and a Court of offices at the further end, to consist of a wash-house, hay-lofts, and stables; where the possessor of every lodging may, if necessary, be accommodated with a hayloft and stable for two horses.

The possessors of these lodgings will be plentifully supplied with water, as there are pump-wells in the front and back areas of good water, that kept full during the hot very dry summer season, and lead cisterns besides, supplied by pipes from the city reservoir.

The situation, past the Castle, is pleasant and healthy.— (The Magistrate having ordered the North Loch to be drained, which is now going on.) There is an extensive view of the south and west country, that cannot be interrupted. The rain water goes down the roof, which proves very disagreeable in wet weather, running down the fronts and dripping about the doors of most other houses, is carried off from these lodgings by lead pipes, which run through the water-courses, and discharge the common sewers in that quarter.

The rent of some of the lodgings is 9 l.—of others 40 l.
—and of the two upper 30 l. each.—The tenement having been built in 1786, the walls are dry and well seasoned; and if necessary for the tenants convenience, they may have access to the possession a month or two before the term.

Apply to Mr Morrison the proprietor, at his Writing Chambers in Merchant Court.

To be SOLD by the Trustee on the sequestrated estate of William McAlpine and Co on Tuesday the 24th day of February current, between the hours of twelve and two o'- clock, within the house of Thomas Marshall, vintner in Perth.

THE valuable, commodious, and extensive PRINTING GROUNDS of CROMWELL PARK and STORM-MOUNT-FIELD, on long leases at small rents, and situated on the rivers Almond and Tay, near Perth, with the Buildings thereon; together with the Lands of MARYBANK, and the lease of HONEY'S FARM, in the following Lots, viz.

LOT I. The Lease of CROMWELL-PARK, with the Printfield and Buildings erected thereon. Along with this lot will be sold the whole of such parts of the Machinery as are fixtures, conform to inventory. Upset price of this Lot L. 2500.

LOT II. The Lease of STORMMOUNT-FIELD, with the whole Buildings and Machinery, conform to inventory; as also the right of property of the Lands of MARY-BANK.—Upset price of this Lot, L. 3000.

LOT III. The Lease of HONEY'S FARM.—Upset price of this Lot, L. 60.

In case the whole of Lot 2 is not sold in one Lot, it is to be exposed in two separate Lots, viz. Stormmount-field, with the whole Buildings and Machinery in one lot—upset price L. 2000; and the Lands of Marybank with their pertinent in another lot—upset price L. 1000.

The Manufactory at Cromwell-Park is delightfully situated on the north side of the river Almond, occupying 150 ares of land, of which a competent part is most judiciously laid out in Bleaching-fields. It is distant from the town of Perth only five miles; and the buildings, consist of a large and commodious mill-house of five floors, having a fall of water 14 feet, the wheel 17 1/2 feet diameter, and 3 feet broad; there is also a fall behind the wheel of 14 feet; a hoisting house, dry-house, and blue-house under one roof, having a continual supply of water by pipes, without pumping; a printing-shop, carpenter and smiths shops, with two copperplate shops; a dwelling house, and several other erec-tions, which having been all lately built, are in the most complete repair; so that the whole premises may be entered upon by the purchaser without any expence whatever.— This printing ground has, for some years, been in the highest repute. The great abundance of water with which, at all seasons, it is regularly supplied, added to the other eminent advantages it possesses, distinguish it as a most valuable situation, not only for conducting the printing business, but for the establishment of a Spinning concern. With that view the late proprietors erected the Water Mill, which is capable of working many thousand Spindles, and which is in perfect repair.

Stormmount-field possesses advantages for a printing ground which cannot be exceeded, and probably will not be equalled by any other in the kingdom. It is situated within four miles of Perth, on the navigable river Tay, with which it communi-cates by means of a canal of great dimensions, cut at an immense expence, but furnishing the most abundant, certain, and continual supply of water to Bleaching fields of the extent of 120 acres, over the whole of which grounds the water may be so distributed as to occasion an immense saving in labour. The canal and extensive buildings, some of which are not entirely finished, may be completed at a very small expence.

Marybank consists of about 30 acres of arable land, having a ferry over the Tay annexed to it, and possessing a velueable Salmon Fishing; and if sold separately, as it is delightfully situated on the river Tay, would make an agreeable villa.

Honey's Farm consisting of 60 acres of arable land, held on lease for an unexpired term of twenty-one years from Whitunday last.

For further particulars, apply to Messrs Winter and Kaye, Swinthin's Lane, London; or to Edward Chippindall, trustees on the sequestrated estate of the said Messrs. William McAlpine and Co. at Cromwellpark aforesaid; or to Thomas Manson, writer in Edinburgh, in whose hands the title-deeds and articles of roup are to be seen.—And On Wednesday the 25th of February will be sold at Cromwell-Park, (the title to continue from day to day until all be sold) a large quantity of COTTON and LINEN CLOTH, prepared for Printing, and a quantity of DRUGS, consisting chiefly of Medders, with the whole Utensils and Apparatus of every kind for conducting the printing business in all its various branches. The Cloths are laid out in lots, some of 100 pieces, and some 50 in each, and every thing will be exposed in such a manner as to accommodate those intending to purchase. There will be sold at same time, Eleven Saddle and Cart Horses, Three Milch Cows, with some Labouring Utensils, as well as a large quantity of Wood of different kinds.

N. B. Six Months Credit will be given on finding good security.

To be LET, and entered to at Whitunday next,
THAT large, commodious, and well-frequented
